Information Literacy in the Social Sciences area

Last rev. 24/9/2014

Crucial importance of the information...

“We have become like the most primitive Paleolithic man, once more global wanderers, but information gatherers rather than food gatherers. From now on the source of food, wealth and life itself will be information.”

Marshall McLuhan

Marshall McLuhan, “Agenbite of outwit”

Have you heard a song and do you want to have it?

You have to investigate to find out :

- song's title
- the performer
- the cd
- where...or if...you could buy it

Has your professor recommended you a book and you want to read it?

You have to investigate to find out :

- book's title
- the author
- the edition
- where...or if...you could buy it

- Bibliographic research is like an investigation:
 - Identify a topic!
 - What's your goal? Report, Paper, Thesis...
 - Are you able to use the proper sources?
Not every topic can be supported by adequate (and linguistically approachable) bibliography .

- Plan your writing process
 - Presentation, analysis, scientific debate
 - Introduction, analysis of the primary sources and secondary ones, debate, methodology used, conclusions, bibliography, annexes...

Umberto Eco, How to Write a Doctoral Thesis: The Humanistic Subjects, 1977

Why is investigation so important for your research?

how you ask

where you look

What you get

- How?
- Where?
- When?
- Why?
- What?

Evaluating (4)

■ Currency

Information can quickly become obsolete. When was the information published or last updated? Are links or references to other sources up to date? Is your topic in an area that changes rapidly?

■ Rilevance

Does the information answer your research question? Does the information meet the stated requirements of the assignment? Is the information too technical or too simplified for you to use? Does the source add something new to your knowledge of your topic?

■ Authority

What are the author's credentials? Is the author affiliated with an educational institution or prominent organization? Can you find information about the author from reference books or the Internet? Do other books or articles cite the author?

■ Accuracy

Are there statements you know to be false? Are there errors in spelling, punctuation, or grammar? Was the information reviewed by editors or subject experts before it was published? What citations or references support the author's claims? What do other people have to say about the topic?

■ Purpose

Why did the author or publisher make this information available? Is there an obvious bias or prejudice? Are alternative points of view presented? Does the author omit important facts or data that might disprove a claim? Does the author use strong or emotional language?

■ Different planning:

Utilizing

: plagiarism (1)

- i.e. “the practice of taking someone else’s work or ideas and passing them off as one’s own (Oxford Dictionaries 2014)
- It means to steal words, ideas, creative works, and it’s:
 - illegal, because of the copyright law; (L.633/1944 and other rev.);
 - reprehensible, because it runs against intellectual honesty – the basic rule of our University.

Utilizing : plagiarism (2)

There can be different kinds of plagiarism.

Some are more evident...

You read:

The emancipation from economic traditionalism appears, no doubt, to be a factor which would greatly strengthen the tendency to doubt the sanctity of religious tradition, as of all traditional authorities.

But it is necessary to note, what has often been forgotten, that the Reformation meant not the elimination of the Church's control over everyday life, but rather the substitution of a new form of control for the previous one.

(Max Weber, The protestant ethic and the spirit of Capitalism, Allen & Unwin, 1930, p. 36)

You have to use the 'quotation marks' and to cite the source !!!

you have to cite the source!

Different citation styles

(international and sector-based standard)

- Chicago A/Chicago B?/Harvard?/or...

Every citation style establishes rules about:

- Details

- like author, title, publication date, retrieval date, etc.

- Key frame and format

- Series of details (according to the type of material!)
- Punctuation, fonts, space.

It's a web based application that can be used to collect bibliographic references, and to create and manage personal bibliographies.

Users can:

- import, organize and save references taken from bibliographic databases, books, web pages or other sources
- format bibliographies automatically in several referencing styles
- insert bibliographies and citations directly into a text.
